STATE NORMAL SCHOOL.

HISTORICAL SKETCH.

The State Normal School was founded by an act of the General Assembly, approved July 7, 1884. As stated in the act, the school was established "for the benefit of such white persons of either sex as may desire and intend to teach in the public schools of Louisiana." The State Board of Education was empowered to "select a town, city, or village, in which the said Normal School shall be located, taking into consideration its healthfulness, convenience of access, and the liberality of the inhabitants in furnishing the buildings or the means for the erection thereof." Several towns made application, but Natchitoches offered the buildings and grounds of the former Convent of the Sacred Heart and secured the school. The State Board of Education appointed, as the first Board of Administrators, the following residents of the place: Judge David Pierson, Major E. E. Buckner, Hon. L. Caspari, Mr. T. P. Chaplin, and Mr. H. B. Walmsley. This Board organized with Judge David Pierson as President, Mr. T. P. Chaplin, Secretary, and Mr. H. B. Walmsley, Treasurer; and on December 29, 1884, elected Dr. Edward E. Sheib, of Baltimore, President of the Faculty.

The first session of the Normal began on November 1, 1885. The Faculty consisted of Dr. E. E. Sheib, Prof. Earle Grace, and Miss Nettie Rousseau; and about sixty students were enrolled during the session.

The act of 1884, by which the Normal was founded, was amended and re-enacted in 1886. Again in 1888, it was enacted that "the Board of Administrators of the State Normal School shall consist of six competent white citizens, who shall be selected and appointed by the State Board of Education, one from each of the first five circuits of the Courts of Appeals and one from the city of Natchitoches."

The board appointed under this act met at Natchitoches on July 2, 1888, and organized with Col. Wm. H. Wise, of Shreveport, as President; Mr. J. A. Ducournau, Treasurer; and Mr. T. P. Chaplin, Secretary. The position of President of the Faculty was tendered to Thomas D. Boyd, the present incumbent, who was then Professor of History and English Literature at the Louisiana State University and A. and M. College at Baton Rouge.

By another amendment of the law in 1892, the Governor of the State was made ex-officio President of the Board of Administrators, and the six appointed members were divided into three groups of two each, one group to go out of office every two years.

By the various amendments to the charter of the institution, several important changes have been made in its organization, all looking to the better preparation of its students for the work of teaching the public schools of the State. The original act limited the course of study to two years, and the annual session to six months. Under the present law, the course of study covers a period of four years, with the same requirements for entrance as were announced in the first circular of the school, issued in 1885. This advance in the standard of scholarship necessary for graduation has been made by degrees. The annual session now continues eight months, and may be extended to nine months whenever deemed necessary.

The establishment of the Model Ungraded School is perhaps the most important change that has been made in recent years. This department was put in operation at the beginning of the session of 1894-95, and has been successful in every respect. It is designed to be a model for the ungraded country schools of the State, and its province here is to give the Normal students practice in organizing and teaching such schools.

All enactments of the General Assembly relative to the State Normal School have recognized as one of its distinctive features the holding of teachers' institutes by its faculty during the vacations, for the benefit of teachers who could not attend its sessions. These institutes have been held every summer since the establishment of the Normal, and to them is due in a large measure the growing interest in public education throughout the State. The institutes of the State have been systematized by an act of the General Assembly at its last session, requiring that at least twenty weeks of institutes shall be held each year, under the supervision of the State Superintendent of Public Education and the President of the State Normal School. Under this law, Prof. B. C. Caldwell, the State Institute Conductor, has held, during the session of 1894-95, fourteen institutes of one week, and will hold, during the summer, institutes of four weeks each at Lake Charles, Amite City, Opelousas, and New Rhodes.

The State Normal School of Louisiana has been in existence for ten years. During that time it has sent out one hundred and forty-eight graduates, not including the nineteen who were graduated on the 29th of May, 1895. Of these, one hundred and four have been engaged in teaching during the current school year, notwithstanding the fact that twenty-seven of the lady graduates have been married since graduation, and have thus passed into another sphere of usefulness to humanity. It is questionable whether any Normal School in the United States can show a better record.

The State Normal School has been singularly fortunate in its location. Not only have the people of the town and vicinity given it their hearty and enthusiastic support, but it has been almost wholly free from distractions that would interfere with the work of its students. Moreover, the health record of the institution has been phenomenal. During the ten years of its existence not a single death has occurred at the Normal, and there have been very few cases of serious illness.

The following table will show the growth and progress of the school since its foundation :

OBJECT.

The State Normal School has for its object to train efficient teachers for the public schools of the State of Louisiana. It proposes to accomplish this end :

1. By giving those students who take the full four years course an accurate knowledge of all the higher branches taught in a complete system of public schools.

2. By giving them an insight into the laws of mental development, the history and philosophy of education, and the science and art of school teaching and school management.

3. By instructing them in the best methods of teaching the common school branches, and requiring them to put these methods in practice by actual teaching in the Practice School.

4. By seeking to develop in them a high order of character, independence, self-control, love of learning, faithfulness to duty, and zeal for teaching.

LOCATION.

The State Normal School is located in the southern suburbs of the town of Natchitoches, about half a mile from the centre of the town. Its handsome and commodious buildings, formerly occupied as a convent by the Sisters of the Sacred Heart, stand upon a hill overlooking the Cane River Valley, one of the most beautiful and fertile tracts of country in the South. The grounds contain about twenty acres under fence, and about eighty acres of open woodland. The large campus, studded with shade trees, affords every opportunity for outdoor recreation.

For beauty and healthfulness, the site can not be excelled in the South, and nowhere could a spot be found where the student would be less surrounded by influences tending to produce distraction from study.

ACCESSIBILITY.

The Natchitoches and R. R. Valley Railroad connects the town with the Texas & Pacific Railway at Cypress, eleven miles from Natchitoches, and with Red River at Grand Ecore, four miles from Natchitoches. The trains make close connection with all day trains on the Texas & Pacific Railway, and the depot is within three hundred yards of the Normal School.

COURSE OF STUDY.

The school contains two departments: the Normal Department, which has for its object to give the scholarship and pedagogical training necessary for the teacher's profession; and the Practice School, in which the best methods of teaching the common school branches are practically exemplified, and in which the Normal students are required to put in practice, by actual teaching, the professional knowledge acquired in the Normal classes.

The Normal course of study covers a period of four sessions, each session being divided into two terms of about four months each.

During the first two sessions, the academic branches are taught in such full and exhaustive manner as to give the student a thorough and comprehensive knowledge of the subjects he is to teach.

During the third session the same exhaustive treatment is applied to higher branches, and a sufficient amount of professional instruction is given to enable the student to enter intelligently upon the practice work of the senior year.

During the fourth session, the time of the student is largely devoted to actual teaching in the Practice School, accompanied by daily critical discussion of the laws of mental development and their practical application to the instruction and discipline of the school. Throughout this work, constant reference is made by the students to the standard works on education.

The course of study is designed to carry out the provisions of the law by affording the student an opportunity to acquire an accurate knowledge of all the branches required for a first grade (or high school) teacher's certificate, and by giving him a thorough course of professional training in the science and the art of teaching. It will be changed and amplified to suit the varying needs of a growing public school system.

New Normal classes are organized at the beginning of each term of four months, so that students who find it inconvenient to remain at the school continuously until graduation may attend during either term of several successive sessions until they complete the course of study.

The Normal course of study will be arranged hereafter, as follows:

Hereafter lectures and lessons on School Organization, Management, Methods of Teaching, etc., will be given throughout the session to all the classes; but the regular professional course begins in the Advanced Intermediate Class.

PRACTICE TEACHING.

The preliminary training for teaching begins the third term before graduation. This work is a complete exposition of the principles of teaching.

By the study of the history of education, the various systems of education are investigated and the cause of their failure or success carefully discussed. The lives and writings of the great educational reformers not only give the young student a reverence for his profession, but make him an enthusiastic advocate of educational reforms.

The teacher must study the mind of a child as thoroughly as an artisan studies the material he uses, but this difference must not be forgotten: the artisan's material can be replaced, but the mind of a child always shows the scars of poor teaching. Instruction in psychology is therefore made as practical as possible; the simplest illustrations are used, and the student is urged continually to investigate for himself.

The preliminary training concludes with visits to the Practice School and a discussion of the elements of school management and school organization. Our educational literature abounds in good books on these subjects, which the pupils are required to read.

The practice teaching begins in the Senior Class and continues eight months. This work is divided into two parts: first, methods of teaching the branches required in the schools of our state; second, the application of these methods.

An exposition of methods is not now in place; it is only necessary to call attention to the fact that the experience of years has given to the modern teacher the best ways and means of teaching certain subjects. These ways are either explained or the principle so stated that the student easily follows the line of thought and discovers the result himself. The many methods of teaching any subject. Reading for instance, are investigated thoroughly by the students, they being guided by the desire to use that method which is best suited to the pupils. Methods in Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, Spelling, and Language are given the first term; in Geography, History, Drawing, Science, and Grammar, the second or last term.

As soon as the students comprehend these methods by their work and visits to the Practice Department, they are assigned to the various grades or classes, where they teach a portion of each day under charge of the regular grade teachers. They are required to submit daily a lesson "plan" to the critic, who is the teacher regularly in charge of the grade. This "plan" is a complete account of how the lesson is to be given, and is divided into three parts: aim, preparation, and recitation. The "recitation" is a detailed account of how the lesson is to be taught. This plan is corrected and criticised by the critic, no lesson being given that is not satisfactorily prepared. When the student has made the required progress in teaching, another subject is assigned. The practice teaching continues one hour each day and all students are required to teach in every grade. The critique, which is devoted to a criticism of the day's lessons, immediately follows the teaching period, and is conducted by the critic, assisted by the members of the training class who heard the lesson. Each step of the lesson is exhaustively discussed, and is followed by a study of the next day's lessons. How to teach does not always mean how to control, and special efforts are made to give practical instruction in discipline. In the daily critique, class management forms one of the important points for criticism, and discipline continues from first to last to be all-important. In the regular work of the last term, special lectures on school management and school organization are given, and the best text-books on these subjects are studied. Original thought is stimulated by animated discussion of such topics of interest as classification, grading, saving of time, programmes, school material, and punishment.

PRACTICE SCHOOL.

The Practice School comprises three primary grades—the first, second and third—and the model ungraded school, which includes pupils of every degree of advancement between the third grade and the Normal Department. Except during the practice hour, the teaching in the Practice School is done by regular members of the Normal faculty, who also act as critics of the work done during the practice hour by the Normal students.

The course of instruction in the Practice School is as complete as personal investigation of the best schools in the country can make it. Thorough instruction is given in all studies from the sub-primary, or kindergarten, of the first grade to the completion of the elementary branches in the usual grammar school course.

The Model Ungraded School was established to give the Normal students special preparation for teaching country schools; but it affords an excellent opportunity for students unprepared for the Normal Department to review quickly the branches necessary for entrance. There is no time specified for promotion, ability to do the required work being the only consideration. A small but well selected library has been set aside for the pupils of this room; and the record of the session shows their eagerness to read good books of travels, history and biography. In the new building, no room is better arranged and equipped than that of the Model Ungraded School. Separate entrances isolate it from the rest of the school, and separate cloak-rooms for boys and girls give additional conveniences.

TERMS OF ADMISSION.

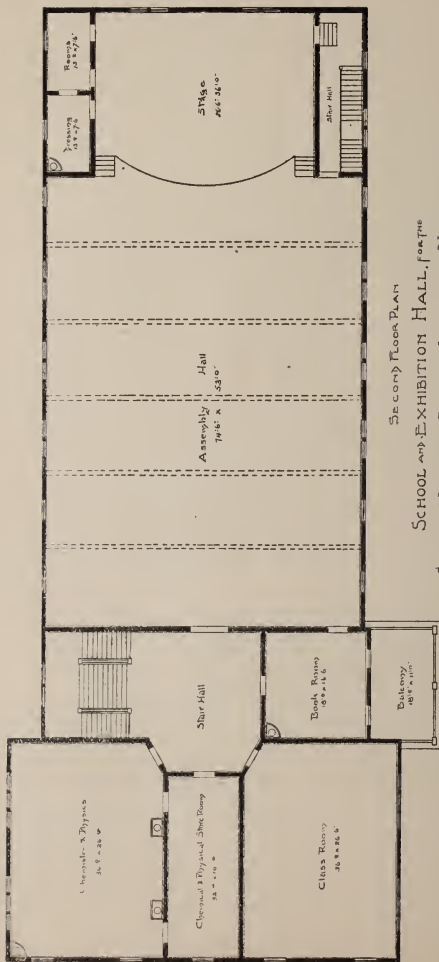

The Normal School is open to both sexes.

Applicants for admission to the Normal Department must be at least fifteen years of age if female, and sixteen years of age if male; and must present on the day of entrance a satisfactory certificate of good moral character by letter to the president from some school director or other prominent citizen of the parish.

Applicants of requisite qualifications, as shown by examination, diploma, or teacher's certificate, will be admitted to any one of the classes, except the Advanced Senior. Holders of first grade teacher's certificates or the diplomas of first-class high schools and colleges, will be admitted without examination to the Advanced Intermediate Class, to graduate in three terms, or half sessions. Holders of second grade certificates will be admitted to the Junior Class without examination. No applicant will be admitted to the Senior Class, to graduate in one session, without passing a thorough examination on all the important branches of previous years of the Course of Study.

The examination for admission to the "A" Class (the lowest Normal class) includes Reading, Writing, Spelling, English Composition and Grammar, Arithmetic through Percentage, Geography, and the History of the United States. Applicants who fail to pass the examination for entrance to the Normal Department will be assigned to the Model Ungraded School.

Applications having been often received from persons who wish to pursue special courses of study at the State Normal School for one or more terms, or who are unwilling to pledge themselves to remain at the school until graduation or to teach in the public schools for one year after graduation, the Board of Administrators, at its last meeting, May 29, 1895, following the custom of other State Normal Schools, resolved that hereafter such applicants be admitted upon the payment of a tuition fee not to exceed twenty dollars ($20) per term.

Under this resolution three classes of special students will be admitted: (1) those who wish to select special subjects from the course of study; (2) those who wish to take a part of the regular course of study, but not with the view of remaining till graduation; and (3) those who wish to complete the course of study, but are unwilling to pledge themselves to teach in the public schools. Students of the first class will be permitted to select not fewer than three full subjects of study, and will be charged a tuition fee of four dollars ($4) per term for each subject. Students of the second and third classes will pay a tuition fee of twenty dollars ($20) per term.

EXPENSES.

Tuition is free to all students who pursue the regular Normal course of study, and who pledge themselves to attend the school until graduated, unless sooner discharged, and to teach in the public schools of Louisiana for one year after graduation. All other students of the Normal Department will be charged tuition fees as stated above.

The students of the Model Ungraded School pay a tuition fee of $3 per month. The incidental fee for Normal students is $2 per term: for pupils of the Practice School, $1 per term. All tuition and incidental fees must be paid before the student is enrolled as a member of the school.

Board in the Normal Club, for ladies only, costs $10 per month, payable monthly in advance; board in private families for either ladies or gentlemen, $10 to $12.50 per month; washing $1.50 per month; text-books and stationery, about $15 per session.

Normal Club boarders must furnish their own napkins, towels, pillows, and bed clothing for double bed.

The selection of boarding places in the town is subject to the approval of the president.

The necessary expenses of a regular Normal student for the session of eight months are as follows:

Board, etc.....	$80 00 to $100 00
Washing.....	12 00 to 12 00
Text-books and stationery.....	10 00 to 26 00
Incidental fees.....	4 00 to 4 00
Total	$106 00 to $136 00

GRADUATION.

Upon successfully completing the course of study, the student is awarded a diploma, which, according to the law, "shall entitle its holder to a first grade teacher's certificate, valid in any town or parish in the State for four years from the date of graduation, at the expiration of which time it may be renewed, for the same period, by the State Board of Education upon satisfactory evidence of the ability, progress, and moral character of the teacher making application for such renewal. Furthermore, the diploma of the State Normal School shall entitle its holder to such degree of preference in the selection of teachers for the public schools of the State as may be deemed wise and expedient by the State Board of Education."

VIEW IN THE GROUNDS.

SESSIONS.

The eleventh annual session will begin on the first day of October, 1895, and continue eight months. The session is divided into two terms of four months each, the second beginning on the first Monday in February.

Students will be received at any time during the session, but are advised to enter at the beginning of a term.

Applicants for entrance, and students who have to be examined for promotion, must report for examination on Monday, September 30, 1895, at 9 A. M.

There are five daily sessions each week, from 9 A. M. to 2:40 P. M.

On Saturdays, from 9 A. M. to 12 M., the students of the Normal Department may have general literary exercises or written examinations.

TEXT-BOOKS AND STATIONERY.

As the investigation of topics assigned by the teacher is a prominent feature in the Normal method of teaching, the work of the student is not confined to one set of text-books. Students are advised to bring with them the text-books they have been using, and such dictionaries and other works of reference as they may possess.

DISCIPLINE.

The discipline of the Normal School is based upon self-control. The fact that many of the students are ladies and gentlemen of mature age renders the preservation of good order an easy matter. All students are expected to conduct themselves with the utmost propriety at all times, and those who are not disposed to submit willingly and cheerfully to all the wholesome restraints found necessary for the good working and good reputation of the school, will be requested to leave.

All students, whether of the Normal or Practice Department, who are absent from the school for one week, without permission or valid excuse, will be dropped from the rolls and not permitted to return during the current term.

Excuses for absence should be sent in writing to the President before the expiration of the period of seven days.

Habitual absence or neglect of study may at any time result in a request to withdraw the student.

RELIGIOUS INFLUENCES.

The Normal is a free, State school, and therefore undenominational; but every effort is made to throw around the student an atmosphere of refined and enlightened Christian morality. Students are encouraged and urged to attend the services of the churches in the town, of which there are four—Methodist, Baptist, Episcopal, and Roman Catholic. An undenominational Sunday school is held at the Normal every Sunday afternoon with a regular course of Bible study continuing through several sessions. The following is the order of exercises:

NORMAL SUNDAY SCHOOL.

ORDER OF EXERCISES.

1. Opening Hymn.

2. Prayer (to be read by the whole school):

“Have mercy upon me, O God, according to thy loving kindness; according to the multitude of thy tender mercies, blot out my transgressions. Wash me thoroughly from my iniquity, and cleanse me from my sins. For I acknowledge my transgression, and my sin is ever before me. Against thee, thee only, have I sinned, and done evil in thy sight: purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean; wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow. Hide thy face from my iniquities, and blot out all my sins. Create within me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me. Cast me not away from thy presence; and take not thy holy spirit from me. Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation. And uphold me with a free spirit. O Lord, open thou my lips, and my mouth shall show forth thy praise.”—Psalm 51.

3. Song service.
4. Responsive reading of one of the Psalms.
5. Hymn.
6. The Lesson for the Day, studied in classes.
7. Hymn.
8. Song (solo or quartette).
9. General Exercises. (Short talks on the geography or ethnology of the lesson; connecting links between the lesson and the last one; announcements about the next lesson; reports of committee on special work.)
10. Reports of Secretary and Treasurer.
11. Closing Hymn.
12. Closing Prayer (to be repeated by the whole school):
 "Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength and my redeemer."—Psalm 19.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

The Normal has two well organized, well sustained literary societies, called the "Seekers After Knowledge" and the "Eclectic." Their members are the students, former students and teachers of the school; and their exercises, conducted by the students themselves, form one of the most valuable of educational agencies. These societies meet in the Normal Music Hall on alternate Saturday evenings. A third society has recently been organized, called the "Peabody Literary Society," and consisting of gentlemen only. It meets on every other Friday afternoon.

The joint celebration of the two older societies forms a salient feature of the annual commencement. At the commencement of 1895, the question, "Resolved, That the National government should own all railway, telegraph, and telephone lines," was debated, the S. A. K. taking the affirmative, and the Eclectic the negative. The decision was given to the negative, and Mr. Robt. B. Butler, of the Eclectic, was awarded the prize for the best individual debate. Mr. Robert Phillips, of the S. A. K., was the winner in the contest in declamation.

LIBRARY AND APPARATUS.

The Library contains about two thousand well selected volumes, and is in constant use in supplementing the classroom work of the students, especially in the departments of pedagogy, history, and literature. In these departments, the students are given regular courses of supplementary reading extending through the four months vacation.

Many of the leading papers of the State are generously donated to the Reading Room, which is also supplied with educational journals, magazines, and other periodicals.

The school is well supplied with maps, globes, charts, etc.; and much useful apparatus was purchased for the science departments during the last year. The science rooms in the new building will be well supplied with modern appliances and conveniences.

GENERAL REMARKS.

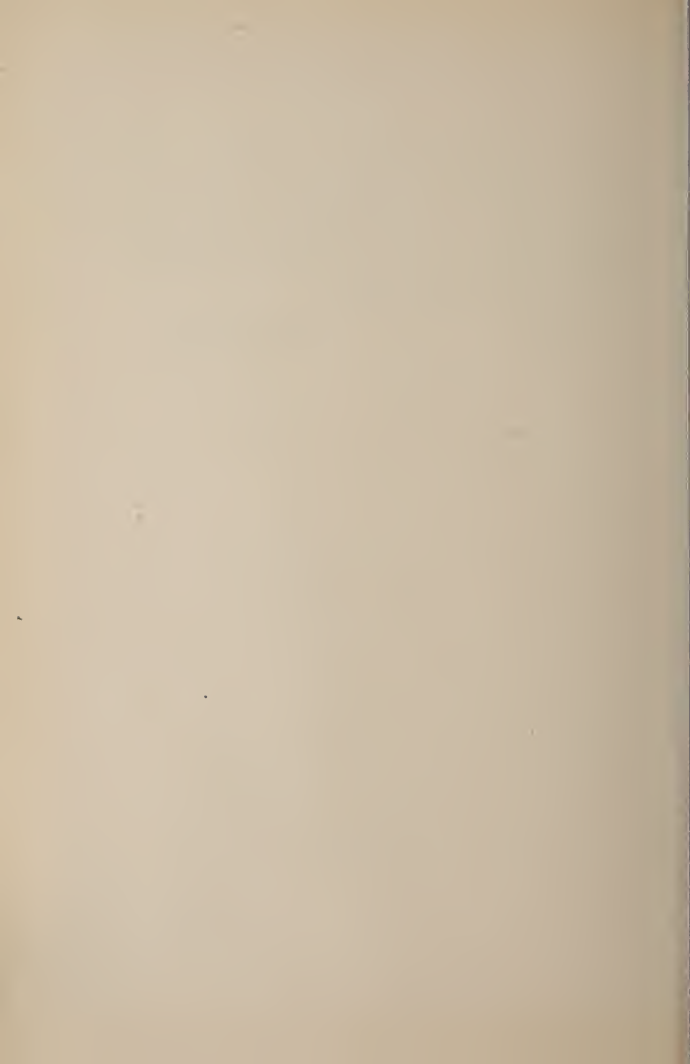

As the only State Normal School—the keystone of the arch of public education in Louisiana—this institution appeals strongly for the sympathy and support of every friend of education. Though young in years, it has already done much, through its graduates and its institutes, to awaken public sentiment to the necessity of improving our school system. It is a wide-awake, active, growing institution. It offers to the young men and women of Louisiana an opportunity, nowhere else to be found, of receiving free of charge thorough training for the profession of teaching, and of securing a diploma that will insure them a competency for life. It has a special field of its own, and is in no sense a rival of the many excellent high schools and colleges of the State; but would urge the graduates of those institutions to take a course of professional training under its faculty before going forth to teach—as many of them will. It invites young men especially, whether they are now engaged in teaching or not; for the demand for its male graduates in lucrative positions is far greater than it can supply. In thoroughness of teaching, perfection of discipline, and enthusiastic devotion to study on the part of its students, it challenges comparison with any institution of learning in this country.

School officers and all other friends of education are cordially invited to visit the school and observe its workings; and by their criticisms and suggestions to help us to make it a more and more useful factor in developing an adequate system of public schools in our State.
